

BREAST MRI DETECTS MORE CANCERS. THAT'S WHY WE DO MORE MRIs.

The American Cancer Society has announced new guidelines encouraging women at the greatest risk of breast cancer to undergo a breast MRI each year to try to detect more tumors at their earliest, most treatable stages. The Society's research confirmed what we at Mount Carmel already knew — in the appropriate clinical setting, adding a breast MRI to a regular mammogram can double the number of cancers found in high-risk women. With a dedicated breast MRI program, the latest technologies, an experienced team of specially trained radiologists and one of the nation's foremost breast MRI experts, Mount Carmel has already performed more than 2,500 breast MRIs and is giving more women a better chance at a cancer-free life.
